TRIP AND SOCIAL REPORTS

Mandurah New Year's Brunch Sunday January 8th

Another good turnout of 22 people gathered to start off the new year - a few less than expected but still a good number. In fact, it made it easier to get around and speak to everyone.

Karen & I and Phil & Judy arrived early to secure the picnic gazebos before everyone arrived about 10.00. Some other groups must have been partying the day before because the tables were very grubby. Thanks to Phil for doing a big clean-up.

Also disappointing was the electric barbecues were not working. Fortunately, most people had a fallback of picnic foods, so the bacon and eggs weren't missed too much. The coffee van did a very good trade.

I reported the BBQs to the council but haven't had any feedback yet.

Most of the discussion revolved around people's Christmas and New Year activities. General consensus was far too much eating and drinking-as usual. But I didn't hear any new year resolutions to the contrary. And of course, all the trips and holidays people are planning are always great to hear about and envy.

Alan and Carol had to leave early. They have family visiting from UK and had dropped them off for a dolphin watching cruise. Unluckily the cruise boat broke down and had to be towed back to the jetty. So they had to go and pick them up.

Thanks to everyone for making the drive down to Mandurah and special mention to John and Penny for driving up from Busselton and Tony & Jenny up from Eaton.

Australia Day

At

Olive Hill Farm

Hello everyone. What a week, fantastic weather, fantastic surrounding, fantastic scenery and last but not least a group of fantastic club members.

OK well here is what happened over this trip:

Day 1: Jan 23. The day Elisa and I left home to head down to Olive Hill farm, we had decided that we wanted to arrive early so that we could talk to Helen or the camp hosts so that we could ensure camp sites in close proximity so that our group wouldn't be scattered around the farm. We planned to spend a quiet night (wrong) at Buffalo Rd rest area. We did but it was far from quiet the amount of traffic was incredible. Anyway we did spend the night and it did quieten down later in the evening.

Day 2: Jan 24. Had breakfast and headed off.

Traffic was light and we made good time and arrived at Olive Hill Farm about 9:30am. Camp host wasn't about and Helen was up in Perth with her son who was undergoing further treatment. We had a look around and selected a suitable camp site.

When the camp host returned I introduced myself to him and he was very relieved because I had parked in a camp site they had put aside for the Wanneroo Wanderers. He was worried he would have to ask me to move as the site was taken.

He showed me the area set aside for us and he had also set up some traffic cones and pine logs across sites so other guests wouldn't take them by accident.

By 10am we had set up camp and sat back and waited for the rest of the Wanderers to arrive.

Ken and Linda were the next to arrive and set up, followed later on by the Morris', Sharps and Di Giorgio.

Off course we all gathered at Ken and Linda's van for happy hour and later on for a pleasant evening.

Day 3: Jan 25. No plans were made for this day as we were expecting the balance of the Wanderers to arrive so we all took care of anything we needed to do and waited for the others. What some of us did do, first thing in the morning was to drive into Cowaramup for a look around and enjoy a coffee and bucket of chips (yum) at the bakery.

The rest of the day was relaxed. The others arrived and set up camp in the sites provided and we once again got together for happy hour and another evening of camp humour.

Day 4: Jan 26. Australia Day, to celebrate the Cowaramup lions club put on a gold coin donation breakfast and what a spread. The shire also handed out awards to deserving shire residents for their tireless endeavours throughout the year. To cap the morning off the shire also conducted an Australian Citizenship ceremony for three new Australians.

The rest of the day was free for everyone to do what they wanted some returned to camp others went to have a look around Margret River.

Later that morning Alan and Alison arrived and set up camp.

Off course that evening we once again gathered for happy hour this time at Paul and Mirella van.

Day 5: Jan 27. The plan for today was to go for lunch at the Colonial Brewery. However overnight we had some rain so I was a bit concerned that we would get wet because we were booked in the beer garden because of the dogs. My concerns were unfounded as Brewery staff advised that they were very pet friendly and if necessary we could bring the dogs inside. As it turned out by the time we went to lunch the weather had completely changed the sun came out and welcomed everyone out to play.

their tireless endeavours throughout the year. To cap the morning off the shire also conducted an Australian Citizenship ceremony for three new Australians.

The rest of the day was free for everyone to do what they wanted some returned to camp others went to have a look around Margret River.

Another pleasure was Tony and Jenny Down contacted us and advised they were coming along for the rest of the trip and also attend the lunch.

Thanks to Keith Granland we now have a new tradition, in that we collect loose change (around $5) from club members participating in the trip and buy as many lotto entries as we have money for. Thanks Keith. So after lunch Elisa and I having collected the money shot off to Margret River, no lotto agency in Cowaramup, to invest the money collected.

Yes you guessed if that evening we again gathered for happy hour but this time we gathered in the onsite community tent as there were more of us than a caravan awning could hold.

Day 6: Jan 28 the plan here was to go for a drive and take in some sites. Tony Down suggested we go and have a look at Ellendale Homestead. So after a lazy breakfast we set off around 10am as the homestead wasn't that far it only took us around twenty minutes to get there. As we arrived one of the tour guides was just opening up to take a previously booked group of people through. We decided to just walk around the homestead and have a look at the grounds. We headed down to the Stream running through the property and started exploring the plants along the banks. To everyone's delight we found a very big Mulberry tree with fruit that was just beginning to ripen. Well the search was on and mouths were filled with any ripe fruit found.

A good thirty plus minutes later when everyone had had their fill we headed off to find Meekadarribee waterfall. We followed the path as advised by the tour guide earlier, we could hear the water running but couldn't see anything because of the bush between us and the water. After a while the sound of the water started to fade in the background so we realised we had passed the waterfall but had no idea where it was or where we had passed it unknowingly.

We turned around and started heading back when Alan popped out of the bush and declared "Found It" yep that's right Alan had scrambled off the track and went down to the water it search of the waterfall. So we all followed Alan back through the scrub to have a look. There wasn't a clear trail to the falls but it was worth the effort of getting there. The falls were only small but the water was flowing and the grotto behind the falls looked intriguing.

After our look around the falls we headed back to the vehicles with the intention of driving down to the beach for a look. As we started to head off Steve announced over the radio he had lost his prescription sun glasses and he was going to back track back to the falls as he believed that was where he had lost them while scrambling the scrub. We wished him luck and headed off the beach. We didn't linger to long at the beach as the car park was crowded with surfers so we had a quick stroll and then decided to head back to camp and see the rest of the day out sitting Pauls caravan for a while and then gathering at the community tent for the rest of the evening.

When Steve and Sue returned to camp everyone was intrigued to find out if he had found his glasses. Yep he did or a young lad exploring with his parents did. Turns out as Steve was passing the family he asked if anyone had seen a pair of sun glasses and the young lad yes and that he had them. So luckily Steve was reunited with his sun glasses.

Day 7: Jan 29 No real plans were made for this day but some of the Wanderers wanted to go to the chocolate factory, so off we went. It was an easy drive there and once there everyone enjoyed themselves wondering around and looking at all the yummy treats available. When we all gathered outside to decide what to do next Tony asked where Kym and Glenda were, OOPs no one had asked Kym and Glenda if they would like to come along we, the lot of us had forgotten to ask, very embarrassing but thankfully Kym and Glenda could see the funny side of it and we all had a good laugh.

While at the chocolate factory Paul said lets go to Simmo's for an ice cream its only 2.8kms on his GPS so off we went and we drove and we drove and we drove and we kept driving turns out Paul had miss read his GPS and the distance to Simmo's was 28km not the 2.8. We all suggested that maybe his GPS screen needs a clean to get rid of any dust specs interfering with his distance meter.

In all another good day spent with good friends.

From the 29th on people started to pack up and head home or to other destinations depending on their situations. Overall everyone had a great time. I also thanked the camp hosts for their assistance and for setting aside the area we used for our stay. I also thanked Helen and wished her and her family well and hoped all goes well with her son's recovery.

PRESTON LIME

17-20 FEB 2023

Three of us arrived on Friday and picked a prime spot by the little lake with the birds. Phil and Judy rocked up later. Eric and Julie stayed at 5 star accommodation at Binningup Caravan Park, but joined us

Saturday was our 4WDrive day, and it was Judy's birthday. We finally left at 10.00am after waiting an hour for Keith & Therese who never turned up even though they were definite starters. There were seven cars – Richard and Kylie, Phil and Judy, Russell, Ray, Rob, Eric and Julie, and Andrew, Deb and kids also joined us for the day. We had a great drive along the Lennard Track, stopping at Honeymoon Pool first for morning tea, and airing down the tyres. Richard and Kylie lead the trip from Preston Lime to Honeymoon Pool, with Russell taking over for the Lennard Track.

Track was a bit challenging in some parts and a bit bumpy, but overall a great and easy track. Stopped at a nice little rapid – water was beautiful and cool (a few of us just dabbled our feet in), and then a nice spot for lunch and a lovely swim. This was the spot that the club used to look after a number of years ago. Water was freezing but warmed up after a while. Took a walking track through the bush to a small waterfall.

There was a nice little hill at the end of the track which was interesting but we all successfully made it to the top. We then stopped at Fairyville (for those of you that know it, that were on the Collie Trip) to air up the tyres, but unfortunately all the displays have been destroyed by some inconsiderate people (that's being nice)

On Sunday a few of us did a beach run in the morning from Preston Beach to Myalup Beach, stopping half way for morning tea. Phil was the only brave one to have a swim in water with the sharks. Where we stopped, there was a nice protected spot behind the dunes for camping. We then went to Old Coast Brewery for lunch which was yummo. All the meals were huge as usual and the service was very quick. There were only three people left on Sunday night, so a

Overall a great weekend was had by everyone.

Sweet Music

25th February, 2023

We had a very enjoyable afternoon with 29 members coming along. We had a large variety of cakes, cupcakes, slices, scones with jam and cream, Anzac biscuits, Fruit and chocolates to choose from. We were a little worried about the numbers as we thought it might be a very tight squeeze, but our members were not worried about this as long as they have food, drink and a good time!

There was a music competition where each couple as a team were given a score sheet and listened to a large variety of music from around the globe selected by Dieter of 30 songs played for 35 seconds with additional time to think, teams would earn 1 point for writing down the name of the song, then another point for the singer or group and an extra point if the song was also in a movie, at end there was an extra bonus of 2 points if you the team could name the additional singer in the duet Perfect Symphony with Ed Sheeran which of course was Andrea Borelli which most of the teams got.

Then just to make sure there was no cheating, Maureen collected all the score sheets and distributed them to other couples to mark, Dieter played the music again and the points were assigned accordingly.

The winners with 50 points were John & Liz, in 2nd place with 43 points were new members Eric & Julie Ayers, and 3rd place with 38 points were Allan and Alison

Julie Ayers, and 3rd place with 38 points were Allan and Alison

Thank you to everyone who came, participated and brought along delicious food to share. "

Hill River Weekend at The Swamp

Friday 3rd March-Tuesday 7th March

A great weekend was held at The Swamp, a property owned by Graeme and Diane, great friends of Russell.

Russell arrive on Thursday with the porta-loo and set this up on the edge of the property.

24 other campers arrived over the next few days. The wind was quite strong and made setting up some camps difficult. Richard and Kylies gazebo blew over while they were putting it up and poor Kylie sustained an injury.

Saturday

Saturday morning saw many campers drive to the local Op Shop and grab a bag full of bargains for $5.

The fishing competition was held on Saturday afternoon and again windy conditions hampered the fisherman. After a couple of hours on the beach most people returned back to camp. Paul, Steve and Tony stayed on the beach until dark and continued fishing. Paul caught 2 Taylor and was named winner of the competition.

Sunday

On Sunday most people went on the trip to Stockyard Gully Caves and walked through the dark and cool caves. Torches were needed to shine the way. Andrew and Deb flew their drone through the cave. After the trip through the caves we drove on the gravel road with many grass trees (blackboys) scattering the landscape to Kakka Alley Brewery. As it was a Public Holiday the Brewery was very busy and we had a long wait for our ordered pizzas. During Happy Hour we had some delicious scones made by Therese and had a taste of the Taylor caught by Paul. Both were delicious.

Awesome sunset

Not a lot fishing going on

Monday

Some campers left on Monday and the others went for a drive up the coast to Sandy Cape, Dynamite Bay (Greenhead), Billy Goat Bay and Leeman. On the way back to camp we stopped at Grigson Look-out which is the highest point in that area with majestic views over the coast and inland. On Monday evening Graeme and Diane invited us to their shed (home) to have our happy hour. It was a welcome relief to sit out of the wind.

Tuesday

The remaining campers packed up on Tuesday and headed home. Another great Wanneroo Wanderers weekend!

New valves on LPG cylinders

From 1 April 2021 LP Gas cylinders with new valves are being phased in.

When you next exchange your BBQ or outdoor gas appliance LP Gas cylinder after 1 April 2021, you may receive a cylinder with the new valve. You won't need to replace your BBQ or outdoor gas appliance as the new valve, known as the LCC27, will safely and easily connect to the hose on your existing BBQ.

The LCC27 valve is being introduced to improve safety and reduce the risk of BBQ fires and accidental gas leakage from LPG cylinders.

Cylinders with the current valves - Type 21 (POL) - may continue to be used. These valves will be phased out over a ten-year period as each LPG cylinder is due for a retest or ten-year change over.

Later in 2021, BBQs and gas appliances with new hose fittings, designed especially for the new valve, will also be phased in. A timeline of these changes is shown further below.

Watch Gas Energy Australia's video on how to connect the new valve to your BBQ.

The new valve is safer

The LCC27 valve has built in safety features:

- Gas will not flow unless the valve is connected to your BBQ's hose assembly. This means gas cannot flow from the cylinder even if the valve handle has been left in the open position and the hose assembly is disconnected.
- The rubber seal is protected from exposure inside the cylinder valve and, so it is less likely to deteriorate and need replacing and can be checked during refilling of the cylinder.

When used with an LCC27 appliance connector, a thermal cut-off in the new appliance connection will stop gas from flowing if there is a fire.

Connecting your existing Type 21 (POL) appliance to the new valve

The new LCC27 valve looks different to the current POL valve. It has both an inside and outside thread, ensuring it is compatible with all existing and future BBQ and LPG appliance connections. Refer to the images below of each valve type.

To connect to your current LPG appliance, simply screw your BBQ or gas appliance hose end into the inside threaded opening of the valve in anti-clockwise direction, until a tight connection has been made.

Test for gas leaks

Always check the connection for gas leaks. Use a squeazy bottle filled with soapy water (use dishwashing liquid and water). Squirt the connection with the suds from the soapy water solution. Bubbles will form if gas is escaping. Find out more about testing your connections here.

If there are no leaks, turn on the gas flow, by turning the valve handle (on top) in an anti-clockwise direction. Gas will stop flowing if you unscrew the hose, even if the handle has not been turned off. However, the cylinder valve handle must be closed before disconnecting the hose assembly for replacement or refilling.

New BBQ hose connections

From 1 October 2021 new appliance connections are being phased in.

And from 1 April 2022 the new connection will be mandatory on all new BBQs, patio heaters and other outdoor LPG appliances with a hose assembly manufactured after this date. Refer to the transition timeline below.

The new LCC27 hose connection (refer to the image below) has been designed specifically for the LCC27 valve and contains the thermal cut-out feature to stop gas from flowing if there is a fire.

The new appliance connection attaches to the new valve using the outside thread, rather than the inside. It is easier to attach due to the large plastic nut and is screwed on in a clockwise direction.

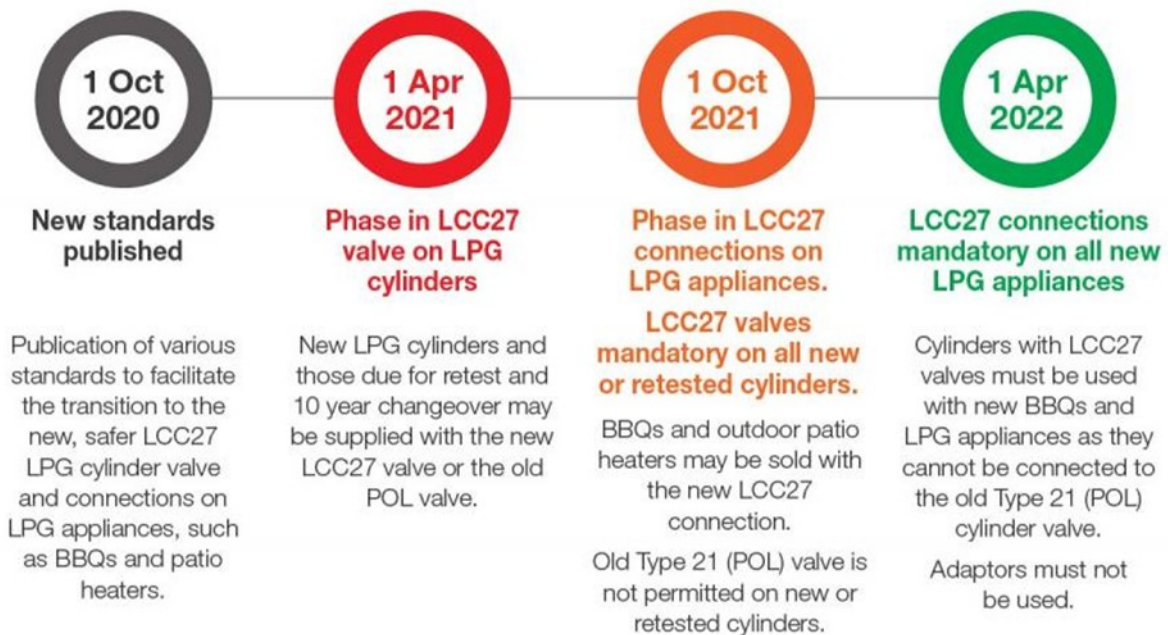

Current Type 21 LPG appliance connection

New Type 27 LPG appliance connection

Transition timeline

New LCC27 valve and appliance connections

The LCC27 cylinder valve is backwards compatible - consumers do not need to purchase a new gas appliance.
The Type 21 (POL) valve remains approved for service life, until a cylinder is due for retest and 10 year changeover.
